

Charles Noyes Kinney
Professor of Chemistry, Drake University
State Chemist of Iowa
Des Moines, Iowa

Kinney Residence
1318-27th Des M.
Wednesday, June 14-11
3-AM.

Dear Class of '07.

I wish each and every one of the class might have been here at the breaking of the first little jug. I wish I might draw the picture of the faces as Prof. broke the jug and out-rolled the little epistles, rolled & tied with red and yellow brenting just as they had been put in five long years ago. They were damp but most of them were easily read. Mr. Boston cut the ribbon & Mrs. Morris read them aloud. We enjoyed them to the full est. We have had a delightful day - (and it was only marred by the thot- of the absence of about half of the class) We hope at the next reunion the circle will be unbroken. So many good things have come to the class these these first years, we can hope for much in the coming five. I am sure the famous class of 1907 of Drake University will be proud of Drake in 1916 when these letters are to be brought forth & read. Well, we are writing under difficulties as you may believe. Some are writing, some laughing some so, so ~~so~~ (but happy) - well, I can not keep my wits together much longer so I will close this wishing joy & happiness & health to each & every one. I hope to be remembered at the 1916 reunion.
Your own '07 MaMa!