Student Disability Services

From Leah Berte:
I wanted to share that
our office will be offering walk – in hours
the first week of classes
to help students get their accommodation forms filled out, and to answer brief questions.
This is strongly encouraged for returning students. For new students, we prefer an appointment.
We are located in 107

Dean's message

Here is a preview of Dean Janet McMahon's message in Blue Magazine (read the upcoming issue for the entire message):
On Monday, September 28, over 400 undergraduate and graduate students entered Collier-Scripps Hall. After 30 years of teaching in various "near campus" locations, we are located in a multi-million dollar complex in the heart of campus. Returning students stared in disbelief. Current faculty, staff and new students came early and stayed late. They found their classrooms and over 12 places to gather for individual or group work.

What's different?

Over 44,000 square feet of learning and work space is now open 7 days a week for daytime and evening classes, small conferences and special events. Technology rich classrooms are equipped with projection systems, wireless internet, glass boards for handwritten work and furniture that can be configured in over 6 different ways.

Reminders

Instructors, have you validated your enrollment? Please do this now to verify who should be in your class. If a student did not attend their first class and you haven't heard from them, please drop them. Students don't like paying for classes they aren't taking. Also, please let Debbie Dodge or Aggie Jones know if there are students attending who are not yet registered.

September is the new January

What will you accomplish this semester? It's time to clarify your goals.
